Technical Director, Joint Strike Fighter Program

Frederic C. Schwartz, a member of the Senior Executive Service, is technical director for the Joint Strike Fighter (JSF) program, Arlington, Va. This multi-billion dollar joint-service program will develop and deploy a family of aircraft that capitalizes on commonality and modularity to maximize affordability in meeting the next generation strike warfare needs of the Air Force, Navy, Marine Corps and our allies. The focus of the program is on affordability-reducing the development, production and ownership costs of the JSF family of aircraft.

Mr. Schwartz spent 23 years of his Air Force civil service career at Wright-Patterson Air Force Base, Ohio, in various engineering weapon system acquisition positions. In February 1994 he was assigned by the Aeronautical Systems Center to his current position. Mr. Schwartz is married to the former Linda Marie Tyleshevski of Dayton, Ohio.
